CPES WELCOMES NEW EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Paul Brady Retires and CPES Welcomes Association Management Professional Kathryn Dube

Hartford, CT (January 4, 2017) – Connecticut Power and Energy Society (CPES) honored Paul Brady on his retirement as Executive Director and introduced Kathryn Dube as his successor at the December 13th holiday meeting at The Society Room of Hartford. Kathryn began transitioning into her new role as Executive Director during the month of December before Paul’s official retirement on December 31st.

“For the past six years, Paul Brady has been an asset to the CPES organization,” said Joey Lee Miranda, President of CPES. “Paul was instrumental in coordinating multiple energy conferences that have established CPES as Connecticut’s leading association of energy professionals. His efforts with the Board to rewrite the bylaws and governing documents, and restructure the association’s membership have been invaluable. We will miss his service, but look forward to future opportunities to engage with him.”

Joey Lee continues, “We are excited to welcome Kathryn Dube who will build upon Paul’s efforts; adding her own strengths, experience, and enthusiasm. We particularly look forward to what her relationship building efforts will bring to our group, especially as we are now in a year of ‘Building Partnerships’.”

Kathryn is expanding her association management portfolio by adding her role as Executive Director for the CPES to her current work with the Renewable Energy & Efficiency Business Association and the Connecticut Council of Small Towns. For the past 11 years, Kathryn has been a key resource for several diverse associations where she has played an integral role in association management support and membership development and retention. Kathryn also has significant experience in conference planning and relationship building through outreach efforts.

Kathryn holds a Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration from Central Connecticut State University.
